Eager for the Journey

Many years ago the great explorer, Sir Francis Drake, was attempting to recruit a number of young men for an upcoming exploration. He gathered them around and told the group that if they came with him they would see some of the most marvelous things their eyes could ever behold: sandy white beaches, juicy fruits, foreign peoples, priceless treasures and gorgeous landscapes.

And he told them that this wild adventure could be theirs if they came with him. Not one of them enlisted for the journey.

The next day a different group came out. Drake told them that if they came with him they would encounter storms that would terrify them into tears. Tiger winds would hammer them and blow them off course for months. Water would frequently be scarce. At times they would be so thirsty that their very souls would cry out for simply one drop of water. In short, danger would always be their constant companion. Drake concluded by declaring that if they could handle these things, the joys of exploration would exceed their wildest dreams. Every single one of them in the group joined Sir Francis Drake that day. Some did not even go home to say good-bye to their families; they just boarded the boat eager for the journey.

What made the difference in these two groups? Why did the first group turn down the mission and the second jump at the chance? Was the second group different and more adventurous than the first?

The answer is, No. It was not the men who had changed; it was the message. The first spoke of rewards; the second spoke of challenges. The first offered comfort; the second promised suffering. The first tempted them with things; the second seduced them with an experience unlike any other.

I like to think that Sir Francis Drake discovered what Jesus knew all too well. And that is this: The paths that are offered to us must promise to shape us, build our character and change our world view, if they are to have any appeal to us at all. If we are presented with a challenge that will change, we will be eager for the journey.

What is it about Jesus' message that made the disciples eager for the journey that was presented to them?

- Jesus offered them a change.
- The mission promised to be a challenge.
- Their lives would never be the same.

CAGED

A boy with a rusty birdcage walked by a preacher. "What are you going to do with that bird?" asked the preacher. "Oh, I'm just going to poke sticks at it, shake the cage, throw water on it...fun things like that." "What are you going to do after that?" "I don't know, probably feed it to the cats." "How much do you want for it?" asked the preacher. "Aw, you don't want it, it's just an old field bird. It doesn't sing or nothin'." "How much?"

The boy thought awhile, and then said, "Two dollars." The preacher paid it. The boy grinned, and pocketed his money. Then he watched to see what the preacher would do with the bird. The preacher just opened the cage and turned it loose. The boy walked away, shaking his head over the craziness of some people.

The minister had something else in mind. Sin has "caged" each one of us and Satan has mankind in his grasp. Jesus asks, "What are you going to do with them?" "I'm just going to have fun with them. I'm going to tease them. I'm going to bring heartache and pain into their lives." "And after that?" "Well, when I get tired, I will take them to eternal destruction." "I will buy them," says Jesus. "You couldn't possibly want them! They will despise You, use Your name in vain and reject You. Then they will kill You." "I will give my life." Jesus paid the price, and set us free (Eph. 1:7). Won't you accept His offer on His terms?

A preacher for a church was overcome with all the duties he had, so he made a clone of himself. All was going well—he could be in two hospitals at once and attend two meetings at the same time. This was the answer for his busy life.

Suddenly, the genes went crazy and the cloned preacher's personality changed. He started making passes at women, yelling at drivers who cut him off and making obscene gestures. This concerned the preacher, so he and the clone took a day off and went to the Sears Tower, ate lunch and enjoyed the view from the top.

While the clone was looking at the skyline through the telescope, the preacher pushed him over the side and that was the end of the clone. When the preacher left the building and walked past the crowd that had gathered, the police stopped him and placed him under arrest. "Under Arrest? What is the charge?"

"Making an obscene clone fall!" was the answer.

Announcements

Today's greeters are Johnie Lowrance and Estalene Morrell. Next week, Bill and Brenda Warren will be the greeters.

Visitation Teams will not meet today.

There is a sign-up sheet in the foyer for anyone who can help teach or bring cookies for our VBS.
